

SAVE WATER TARGET 155

Ways to save outdoors

Stage 3a water restrictions still apply

Remember we're still at 3a. Stage 3a water restrictions limit how water can be used outdoors and also restricts garden watering times. Outdoor water use must always comply with stage 3a water restrictions.

To keep your outdoor areas healthy during summer, consider the following actions. Implementing these actions will limit the amount of drinking water you need to use on the garden, and help you to achieve Target 155.

Don't forget to tick the box on the right hand side for the water saving actions you will implement.

Ways to save	What you'll save	Your commitment
Mulching	A well mulched garden stops evaporation by up to 70%.	<input type="checkbox"/>
Prepare your soil	Using fertiliser, water storing agents and wetting crystals will ensure your soil stays as healthy as possible.	<input type="checkbox"/>
Check your outdoor taps and hoses for leaks	A dripping tap or leaking hose wastes lots of water. Repair leaking taps immediately.	<input type="checkbox"/>
Use a cover on your pool and check the pool for leaks	A pool cover will reduce evaporation from the pool.	<input type="checkbox"/>
If planting new plants, choose drought tolerant ones	Drought tolerant plants have a better chance of survival in dry climates and they can look great too! Find a list of accredited water saver garden centres at www.ourwater.vic.gov.au	<input type="checkbox"/>
Don't cut the lawn too short	Longer grass has deeper roots which will last longer in hotter weather.	<input type="checkbox"/>
Install a rainwater tank	Great for the garden and pool and you can use it anytime. Use a plumber to connect your tank to your toilet and washing machine to achieve the greatest water savings.	<input type="checkbox"/>
Install a permanent grey water system	This enables you to collect grey water for reuse on your property. Remember to follow EPA's guidelines on safe use of grey water. These can be found at www.epa.vic.gov.au/water/reuse/reuse.asp	<input type="checkbox"/>
